

FOR PRESIDENT,
GROVER CLEVELAND,
Of New York.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT,
JOHN G. CARLISLE,
Of Kentucky.

TO ADVERTISERS:

You are looking for the best medium through which to reach the people. You will find that medium in the MT. STERLING ADVOCATE. For the reasons that it has a larger circulation than any paper published here, and reaches more people who are tributary to Mt. Sterling than any other publication. Our books are open to advertisers and they can satisfy themselves of the truth of this assertion.

Watterson's Letter.

In reply to hundreds of queries through newspapers and telegrams, Mr. Watterson avows the authorship of the now famous letter published over his signature and directed to Gov. Hill. He says:

"I was impelled to do so by motives the sincerest and most disinterested."

There appeared in many of the newspapers last Sunday a sensational account of how a caucus of United States Senators had resolved upon retiring Gov. Hill from the Presidential arena, of how I had been selected as the instrument of these Senators, and of how I had dispatched him a letter potent enough to alter his plans.

Whence this fantastic story emanated, I can not divine; but it was so absurd, and did such injustice to both Gov. Hill and myself, that I thought as I still think, that there could be no objection on the part of anybody to the publication of the truth, which flatly contradicted it.

I was induced to this by the circumstance that Gov. Hill had seemed to have adopted a course suggested by considerations alike honorable to his character and creditable to his judgment; the more so, indeed, since the letter in question furnished him, and his friends, impartial testimony to answer and refute a most odious and wild slanderous calumny.

I confess that I am surprised that the Governor should make such haste to disavow and disown a course, which, however prompted, gratified every Democrat in the United States outside the State of New York, removing him at once from the field of mere political scheming and self-seeking, and placing him in the front rank of statesmen having the good of the country and party at heart.

I am equally distressed by the representation that Gov. Hill should regard my plain, but friendly, words as impertinent and insulting. I did not think that the same words might be with propriety addressed to him, or to Democratic aspirant, by the humblest Democrat in the land; and I still hope that, annoyed by a publication which annoyed me as well, he has proceeded upon a misapprehension of the facts of the case. I can assure him that neither in the writing or printing of my letter was there any purpose to take an advantage of him, and, least of all, to do him injustice.

And no man's man and exist in no man's interest. To use his own happy expression, "I am a Democrat," who passed a life-time in the service of principles and policies from which I could not expect the slightest personal recognition or reward, I am only humiliated by the reflection that my service was not sufficient, in the estimation of Gov. Hill, to protect me against his displeasure, and that, in the harsh construction which he puts upon a genuine, and not a forged letter, he visits me with what I must regard as unmerited suspicion."

J. R. Thomas who was selected as one of the best selection of good names to choose from in the selection of him they had a man of excellent sense, and views, one who the better he is of course. Mr. Thomas is well equipped for the position to which he aspires and will faithfully and well represent the interests of the farming classes.

W. T. Stokely, who was before the Farmers' Union, for his nomination as a candidate to represent this Legislative District, says, whilst very thankful for the cordial and liberal support received from his friends, he is anxious of congratulating the Alliance on their selection of so excellent a man as J. R. Thomas to be their representative. He knows J. R. Thomas to be a more cordial supporter than any other man in the district to prove himself.

Cleveland's Letter.

Mr. Cleveland's letter on the free coinage of silver has stirred up a perfect storm of comment. Below we give a few of these from some of the officials as they appear in the Washington correspondence in the Courier-Journal:

Mr. Goodnight, of Kentucky: "The letter flatters Mr. Cleveland out completely. The wonder to me was that that man was not condemned long ago. It was known long ago that he was un-Democratic on the subject of silver."

Mr. Flower, of New York: "It shows Mr. Cleveland has the courage of his convictions."

Mr. Sayers, of Texas: "If the Democratic party stands by its platform, it will result in an irreconcilable difference between it and Mr. Cleveland."

Mr. Edmonds, of Virginia: "It means political death for Mr. Cleveland as far as the South and West are concerned."

Mr. Quinn, of New York: "The letter is a big mistake. It is especially inopportune at this time."

Mr. Clamney, of North Carolina: "Cleveland is not in it. He is dumped."

Gen. Wheeler: "It would have been better if Cleveland had written a letter declining the nomination."

Mr. Lawler: "I have greater admiration for Mr. Cleveland now than I ever had. I don't agree with him on silver, but I admire the man for his frankness and sincerity."

Mr. Fithian, of Illinois: "Cleveland is out of the fight."

Mr. Bynum, of Indiana: "It is a long time before the next Democratic convention."

Mr. Owens, of Ohio: "It knocks Cleveland out of the fight."

Mr. Wiley, of New York: "The letter will help Cleveland in New York. I think the sentiment of the country is changing to the position which Mr. Cleveland holds."

Mr. Foreman, of Illinois: "Mr. Cleveland can not expect a re-nomination at the hands of the Democracy after writing such a letter."

Mr. Stewart, of Texas: "It ought to prevent his re-nomination."

Mr. Stone, of Kentucky: "I don't believe any Democrat who is opposed to free coinage can be elected President."

Mr. McKenridge, of Kentucky: "I believe Mr. Cleveland will be elected President."

Mr. Kerr, of Pennsylvania, Chairman of his State Committee: "The West, South and Southwest can not support Mr. Cleveland after that letter. The letter will, however, help Mr. Cleveland in Pennsylvania."

Mr. Reel, of Arkansas: "The letter will hurt Mr. Cleveland, but he has the confidence of more Democrats than any other man in the country. Many of those who differ with him on the silver question will yet be with him for the Presidency."

Mr. Bland: "Every one must see that Mr. Cleveland has made a mistake. His letter makes his candidacy for the Presidency ridiculous. He will have no following west of the Alleghany mountains."

Of the Republicans, Mr. Darlington, of Pennsylvania, says: "It is not going to injure his Presidential chances."

Mr. Dingley, of Maine, thought it an admirable letter: "It represents the views of all sound business men throughout the country."

What the Press Has to Say About the Letter and the Writer.

"A man of courage," will say: "There is one man whose name will go into history as the heroic statesman of his age; one man who dared to be right and to speak for the right, even at the cost of political success. In 1887 Grover Cleveland dared everything to rescue the people from the most wanton tax upon wages for the benefit of a few privileged classes. It cost him the Presidency, but his teaching has triumphed by the largest popular majority of American history. There was no special need for Grover Cleveland to speak on the silver issue beyond the inspiration of heroic manhood, but he would cease to be the Grover Cleveland who left the Presidency proud of defeat if he had not spoken on free silver when opportunity presented."

Philadelphia Times.

"Mr. Cleveland's letter to the anti-silver mass-meeting at the Cooper Union is as disingenuous and amusing a document as has recently proceeded from his industrious pen. While primarily intended for the placation of his Mugwump friends, who have been inconveniently persistent in their demands that Mr. Cleveland should dare to be a Daniel on the silver question, the letter squints at the Southern and Western Democrats."

"The peril in Mr. Cleveland's present view is not a liberal extension of the silver currency, for we have demonstrated the usefulness of such an increase. It is in free, unlimited and independent silver coinage that he sniffs disaster. Who demonstrated the usefulness of such an increase? True to the last to his destiny, Grover Cleveland dares only to be a stuffed Daniel on the silver question."

—[New York Sun.]

"Ex-President Cleveland speaks out with his accustomed courage and lucidity. His words are not the words of a trimmer, but of a statesman who squares his conduct by his convictions as to the public interest. They will be distasteful to some Democrats, but they express honest opinions, and indicate the possession of backbone and honesty are qualities the Democracy have admired ever since Jackson's time."

—[Baltimore Sun.]

"Ex-President Cleveland is amply explicit in discussing the silver question. The letter he sent to the Reform Club is not only concise, but graphic. The language in it is well chosen throughout. It does justice to Mr. Cleveland by placing him on exactly the right ground on this subject."

—[Boston Herald.]

"Mr. Cleveland, in his letter wherein he strongly opposes the Silver bill now before the House and the free coinage of silver, is in accord with the sentiment of the Democracy of the country. The Democratic party can see no reason why silver should not be placed on a parity with gold, sees nothing to fear in returning to the old system which once prevailed during a period of great national prosperity. We regret exceedingly that Mr. Cleveland should have written this letter, which places him in opposition to the wishes of the majority of his party."

—[New Orleans Times-Democrat.]

"We cannot agree with Mr. Cleveland in his deliverance on the silver question, and we fear that he is placing himself, by his antagonism to a great popular demand, in a position that must be considered hostile to the interests of the agricultural communities and to the masses of the people in their efforts to increase the volume of the circulating medium upon a basis of real values, rather than upon one of paper securities and mere confidence. Free silver is the antidote to the radical paper money and sub-treasury schemes of the farmer politicians of the extremist school. At the worst an eighty-cent silver dollar is better than outright fiat paper money. Mr. Cleveland has taken a position which his friends will have cause to regret."

—[New Orleans Picayune.]

A careful reading of Mr. Cleveland's interview leaves the impression that the ex-President is losing no great amount of sleep over the coming campaign.

The ring of Mr. Cleveland's silver note is attracting much attention in Washington, as well as elsewhere.

A man having the courage of his convictions is an honest man, the noblest work of God.

What would those Democrats who quarrel with Mr. Cleveland's silver utterance have? Would he have done himself and his party more honor by a silence which committed him to nothing but cowardice? Then they discount the bravery of an honest man.

The Cleveland silver letter is to be sent broadcast over the land as campaign literature. This can not injure Mr. Cleveland. Even those Democrats who find themselves opposed to his opinions will admire his brave honesty, and be for him more heartily than ever. It is not a condition but a conviction that confronts them, and a conviction backed by the courage of his sincerity. Mr. Cleveland is, possibly, far less concerned personally about the Presidential nomination than many other people, but his party is concerned for him and for itself, and the fact that they know where he stands on any and all subjects does not weaken his chances.

Talmage on Sherman.

At the Brooklyn Academy of Music Mr. Talmage spoke as follows of Gen. Sherman:

"The century had no grander soul to surrender into the eternities than the one who just passed away from us. Frank, honest, brilliant, gallant, petulant, William T. Sherman! Thank God that I ever knew that I ever felt the hearty grip of his right hand, and had the friendship of his great, big heart. I have no heart in the question which is being agitated as to whether he is a Catholic or Protestant. I heard his profession of faith on a memorable occasion and under peculiar circumstances."

"In New York at the New England dinner three years ago I sat with him four hours, he on one side and the immortal Henry W. Grady on the other. When in conversation he expressed to me his respect for the religion embraced by his wife, and his own faith in God and his confidence in the future. Simple as a child, brave as a lion, sympathetic as a woman, firm as a rock, wrathful as a tempest when aroused against great wrong, lovely as a June morning among his friends."
